

The Department of Educational Innovation

Assistant Professor of Educational Psychology Tenure-Track

Department of Educational Innovation seeks qualified candidates for the position of Assistant Professor of Educational Psychology, 10 month, tenure track position with the possibility of summer employment. Position begins August 2011 pending funding.

Required Qualifications

Earned doctorate in Educational Psychology. Candidates must have excellent verbal and written communication skills and demonstrated commitment to teaching, service, and research. Candidates must have the ability to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in educational psychology and human growth and development in face to face and online environments, have an emerging research/publication agenda, and be willing to work some evenings and weekends. Terminal degree must be awarded prior to position starting date.

Preferred Qualifications

Preferred candidates will have three or more years of P-12 school experience, a record of university teaching experience, and a record of grant writing and other activities related to seeking of external funding.

Application Process

Electronically submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, unofficial transcripts, and complete information for five references to:

Dr. Li Cao, Educational Psychology Assistant Professor Search Committee

Email: lcao@westga.edu

Review of applications begins November 15, 2010, open until filled